Today's Game

The rivalry between the two teams that are on the field today has become almost as traditional as a Democratic president and in those years past, Reed College, where footballers play it only for fun in competition with pressing studies, and Pacific, the smallest athletically-minded school in the Northwest, has a record of rock 'em and sock 'em grid scuffles for their own private supremacy.

The Quakers have been unscored upon in their last three games and are continuing to be "up" after their decisive 12-0 win over Pacific University's JV's on this field last Saturday. WHAT TO EXPECT FROM REED: Plenty of passes from Quarterback Don Horrocks to pass snagger John Wolf, end; a strong line and a speedier backfield than they had the first of the season. WHAT TO EXPECT FROM PACIFIC: Another win over the Griffins with the line being the determining factor. Whatever the expectations, today's game will assure plenty of action as Homecoming tilts always are.—H.A.

Five Seniors to Leave Quakers

Five Pacific College footballers on the turf this 1948 Homecoming day are playing their last college football game of their careers today and it can be said sincerely that Coach George Bales will miss their playing when his roll call for gridiron prospects comes next fall. Earl Craven, rugged linesman for Quaker teams in all four years here at Pacific, will probably leave the greatest hole to fill by leaving his tackle spot. Craven was student-coach last year for the Quakers and can be credited with boosting the drive to put Pacific on the map, athletically. Wayne Antrim, also a first stringer at end will leave another spot hard to fill. Antrim is especially tough defensively and his gridiron jaunt at Pacific has also been known for his pass snagging. Tackles Nate Whittlesey and "Bob" Gordon St. George, although usually not starters, are next in line to Bales' substitution beckons. Both are California boys and both plan to enter Christian Service. Bob Cadd, not pictured above, is next in line behind the first string fullback. Cadd has played three years for the Quakers and has proved a rugged competitor. He played a guard spot last year.

Bales, although regretting his farewell bid to these seniors, feels fortunate in having an 11-man influx of experienced freshmen in addition to most of his first stringers, made up of sophomores and juniors, back in the lineup next year. In addition to these an even bigger turnout of freshmen is anticipated next fall. Christian-spirited athletic teams have a definite place at Pacific and indications are that they will continue to carve a bigger niche in the future.

Howard Westcott Has Tough Job at Reed

Coach Howard Westcott, mentor of the Reed College "Griffins" athletic teams, is in his second year at the Portland school and is probably holding down one of the toughest coaching assignments in the northwest. Coaching a football squad in competition with Reed's rugged academic schedule makes Westcott's business doubly difficult.

A graduate of Reed in 1939, Westcott earned his master's degree in education at Columbia University the next year. He also coached and taught at Rice Institute in '39 and '40. University of Wyoming claimed the work of Westcott in 1946 and '47. Westcott is expected to build strong athletic teams for Reed in the future.
