New Campus Calendar Brings Many Changes

George Fox College is making a major calendar adjustment this year, including a change starting classes later and ending them earlier this spring.

Plans involve elimination of a formal finals week at the end of each term and a reorganization for more efficient use of time.

Under the new calendar, classes started October 2, compared to September 27 a year ago. Classes next spring term will be over May 25 compared to June 9 last summer. Seniors will graduate May 20 rather than June 4.

The calendar change is seen as a major step toward providing students more time in the summer to hold jobs. Students now have one of the longest summer breaks of any college in the area.

The college made the extended summer break possible by keeping the present Christmas break starting in mid-December rather than earlier in the month as some other schools that try to allow time for Christmas season jobs.

College officials, consulting with students, found they would rather keep jobs longer in the summer than risk not getting jobs during Christmas vacation.

To accomplish the changes, students spent their Thanksgiving on campus, a system already in existence at some other colleges. The usual three-day break was cut. Students did not go to classes on Thanksgiving Day, however, and special events were held, including a chapel service and a large Thanksgiving feast involving faculty and parents.

Winter term will begin January 2 and run through March 9, with a spring vacation of ten days, a week earlier than before.

A major change is a switch to a system in which final examinations are given during the last week of the term as part of regular class work. Up until now a complete week has been set aside with a formal examination schedule followed with two-hour blocks for tests.

Ultimately the new calendar is seen as a method to adopt more easily a modular approach to scheduling, including a short mini-term of about a month ahead of the regular classes.

Approval of the change toward more efficient and better accommodation of student needs was made after consultation of students and with approval of the Dean's Council, the Administrative Council and faculty.

Death Takes Admissions Head; Service Honors Allen Hadley

Allen Hadley, George Fox director of admissions, died suddenly in Portland October 30.

Hadley, a 1937 graduate of George Fox (then Pacific College), was 57.

At the time of joining the George Fox staff in July, 1968, he resigned from the college's Board of Trustees, having served 23 years, longer than any person on the board at that time.

As director of admissions, Hadley was directly or indirectly responsible for bringing most of the college's current 430 students to campus.

Prior to joining the college staff he was director of Christian education for eight years for the First Friends Church in Portland, now Reedwood Friends. Previously he was a purchasing agent for a Portland brush

College Begins Campus For Northwest Alaska

George Fox College this fall established a branch campus in Kotzebue, Alaska, to teach Eskimo natives in the Arctic Circle just 100 miles from Siberia.

The extension program gives the college one of the closest American educational institutions to Russia.

Developed over the last 18 months, the extension program to provide

Alaskan civic and church leaders out of a concern to provide educational opportunities for native youth.

Appointed to direct the new center with the title of Extension Program Director is Roy Clark, former associate professor of speech at George Fox. Clark has a background of more than 25 years in college teaching and administration.

He will divide his time between the Newberg campus and the Kotzebue center. In Alaska, Clark will teach public speaking and music theory. In Newberg he will research and develop instructional material.

First classes at the center began in October. Joining Clark is economics and business professor, Harold Wilhite. During the school's first term he is instructing courses in bookkeeping, accounting, business law and consumer economics.

Extension classes will be correlated with existing Friends Bible School classes and classes conducted at the Friends Educational Building.

The new college-level program will utilize short-term classes by selected George Fox faculty members, programmed self-instruction techniques, electronic instruction by tape recording, videotaping, "Slide-Sponder," and credit through the national College Level Examination Program (CLEP). Courses are offered on a short-term basis of three to four weeks in length from October through March.

The program is designed to be flexible. The college center is preparing to help adults earn their GED certificates for high school and to allow them to work on their own through workbooks when not able to get to the classroom.

Enrollment Tops Previous Record

With the new branch campus in Alaska, enrollment at George Fox College is at an all-time high.

Forty-two students have enrolled for fall term classes in Kotzebue. With 432 on the Newberg campus, total enrollment is 474, two more than fall term in 1970.

The Alaskan extension director, Roy Clark, reports 24 students have enrolled for accounting courses, 8 in public speaking and 10 in fundamentals of music. Sixteen students are taking courses for full college credit; another 26 are auditing courses.

Enrollment at the new center is above expectations. And Clark reports, "We are expecting that the total enrollment for the six courses in our initial short term could run as high as 65-70 people."

In Newberg there are 156 freshmen, 112 sophomores, 89 juniors, 56 seniors and 18 part-time students.

Roy Clark

classes for both youth and adults is being funded by a Federal Title III grant for work among minority groups, by the college and by the California Yearly Meeting of Friends Church.

The California church organization founded and sponsors the Alaska Friends Mission and Bible Training School in whose buildings first classes are being conducted.

Formation of the college program in the area was unanimously endorsed and arrangements approved by the Alaska Yearly Meeting of Friends Church.

Kotzebue is a coastal village of almost 2,000 Eskimos on the Arctic coast. It is the center of Alaskan Quakers, comprising a dozen village churches and 2,500 persons in the Kobuk area, a 10,000 square mile section of the state.

Courses through the college are being developed at the invitation of

Student Donations Nearly Match City

George Fox College students, with 430 on campus, contributed 44 pints of blood in the fall term Red Cross bloodmobile visit.

The total came within one pint of the amount given last summer by Newberg residents with nearly 4,000 eligible to give.

In a four-hour span 52 tried to give blood and 8 were rejected for various reasons. The visit was sponsored by the student government organization.

Since starting the blood campaign program in 1969 students have now given 442 pints.

Christian Colleges to Grow in Importance

Christian colleges are on the threshold of their most important years, according to George Fox College Dean William D. Green.

"I think that the Christian college is on the verge of its most telling period when it will be listened to as it never has been listened to before, when it has more to offer to young people than it has ever offered before," Green said.

The new dean, who held a similar post at Malone College in Canton, Ohio, for ten years before moving to George Fox in July, addressed a meeting of the George Fox College Women's Auxiliary.

"The Christian college ought to have something to say, with the best of scholarship, the best curriculum and the best professor," Green said. "But may I say too, with the best of philosophy grounded in the Christian faith," he added.

Green said education, in the last analysis, is a matter of taking a stance and of believing in something.

"May I suggest to you that education without a real philosophy that has a goal and meaning and truth is not education — it's untenable," Green told the auxiliary. He said a school without a distinctive philosophy is in an untenable position in modern America and "doesn't deserve to be a college."

Education, according to Green, is a deliberate attempt to form people in an ideal. "And when education ceases to be an attempt to form people in an ideal it's not education, it's happenstance." He said that is what is happening in some of the state universities today.

Society, Green said, lives by an authority and the ideas that captivate it. "Those ideas become its authority, they become its call and its direction. And this is the call, I think, for the Christian college today," Green said.

GFC Trustee Dies

Floyd Bates, a member of the George Fox College Board of Trustees and a 1915 alumnus of the college, died July 26 in Salem.

Bates, 76, was elected to the college's board in 1961 and was a member of the property and finance committee at the time of his death. He attended Pacific Academy, which preceded George Fox College.

A retired farmer, Bates was a former field man for a Salem canning corporation and was a member of the Rosedale Friends Church.

Surviving are his widow Vada; a daughter, Mrs. Barbara Ridgeway of Salem, and two grandchildren.

In a convocation address to open the college's 82nd year Green said the Christian college represents evangelism for today.

"I suggest to you that the Christian college is God's evangelism for today in reaching out into the culture, in reaching out into the intellectual world, in reaching out into the educational world of this country," Green said.

"You and I are God's evangelists. You and I are God's ambassadors. You and I are the ones to whom God has entrusted this kind of perception, this kind of knowledge," Green said.

"May I suggest to you as a Christian scholar that this is the evangelism that God has given us," he said. The ultimate truth of knowledge is not a matter of knowledge, Green said, but is a matter of faith.

A five-day orientation program opened the new academic year by acquainting new and transfer students with the college campus.

The orientation program included general testing sessions, music auditions, a President's Dinner, an introduction to area pastors and a picnic outing.

Library Resource Cooperation Program Involves George Fox

Five Oregon colleges, including George Fox, have started this fall a cooperative plan to share library resources.

GFC; Western Baptist College, Salem; Western Evangelical Seminary, Jennings Lodge; and Warner Pacific College and Columbia Christian College, Portland, under a series of private grants, have established a central bibliographic source with the institutions connected by a teletype network and by courier service.

A complete listing of all books in all libraries is maintained at a center at Warner Pacific College with a research librarian available through the teletype system.

A student requests books on a certain subject through the teletype network; the list of books available in all the libraries is teletyped back by the librarian at the center to the student, and the student makes his choice of those books wanted. Books are then delivered that day or the next by a courier between the schools.

Service is daily to the Portland-Newberg schools.

Funding for the purchase of card catalog systems, teletype and other equipment was supplied by several foundations through the Associated Christian Colleges of Oregon, composed of Warner Pacific College and George Fox College.

A grant of $15,000 over three years for the project was made by the Union Pacific Foundation, New York. A $7,500 grant was awarded by the Collins Foundation of Portland, $9,500 through the Hill Family Foundation, Minneapolis, Minn. and $500 from the Autzen Foundation, Portland.

Charlotte Macy, Aaron Hamlin Elected to Board of Trustees

Two new members have been selected to the 42-member George Fox College Board of Trustees.

The Yearly Meeting also reappointed Fred Baker, director of promotion and outreach for the Tacoma First Friends Church; Walter Wilhite, an investment broker and insurance agent in Boise, Idaho; Cecil Binford, Caldwell, Idaho, rancher and Dwight Macy, a rancher in Culver, Ore.

Composing the Board of Trustees are 18 persons selected by the Yearly Meeting, which founded the college in 1891 and is the governing body, 18 chosen by the board itself and 6 picked by the George Fox Alumni Association. All terms are for three years.

The two new members replace Mrs. Evan (Lois) Jones, Seattle, and Floyd Bates, a Salem resident who died in July.

Six Oregonians are guiding the George Fox College Alumni Association this year.

New president is Bill Hopper, branch manager of the Northeast Multnomah branch of the Oregon State Public Welfare Division. A resident of Hillsboro and a 1958 GFC graduate, Hopper replaces Brian Beals, a West Union school teacher.

Beals, a 1965 graduate, replaces Hopper as chairman of the alumni fund committee. Both Hopper and Beals have served on the board for three years.

New vice-president is Mrs. Lyle (Naomi) Wilson, a Newberg school teacher. A 1958 GFC graduate, Mrs. Wilson, an alumni board member for four years, succeeds Hopper.

Secretary is Edith Cammack, Corvallis, in her second year on the board. Miss Cammack, a 1966 graduate, replaces Mrs. Jack Kirkwood, Beaverton, who did not seek reelection to the association's governing body. Miss Cammack also will serve as chairman of the achievements and awards committee.

A Newberg kindergarten teacher, Mrs. Norval (Mary) Hadley was named as chairman of the continuing education committee. She is a 1949 graduate.

Crook County District Attorney Phil Roberts, a 1965 graduate, will serve as chairman of the homecoming committee along with Mrs. Wilson.

Bruins Play Like Champions As Season Starts

George Fox College opened its 28-game 1972-73 basketball schedule with a second place finish in the NAIA District II Tip-off tourney, a showing that still has the area sports world talking, but an outcome that was not a surprise to Bruin coach Lorin Miller.

Miller's ten-man squad shocked the Linfield Wildcats in their own gym in McMinnville in the opener, taking a 74-73 win over the hosts. The Bruins led by up to eight points at times only to see the Wildcats creep back into contention.

In the second contest the Bruins started slow, then took a 14-point lead with 10 minutes left in the game with Northwest Conference Lewis and Clark College. With guard Sammy Ibarra pumping in 20 points, the Bruins humbled the Pioneers, co-favorite for this year's Northwest Conference title and expected to be in the tourney finals. The GFC cagers took the contest 79-73.

In the championship match the Bruins took defending District II champions Willamette University into two overtimes before bowing 77-74.

The Bearcats led by as much as ten points through the first ten minutes of the second half, with Ibarra, an all-tourney selection, sitting on the bench with four fouls before eventually leaving the game on fouls. Bruin forward, Craig Taylor, also picked for the all-tourney team, and Jim Blake led the comeback charge as the regulation game ended in a 67-67 deadlock.

The first overtime was a defensive battle with both teams scoring just four points. Defense was also the highlight of the second overtime with Willamette finally hitting from inside with 16 seconds to go to provide the margin necessary for a Bearcat win and the championship trophy.

The Bruins took home the game ball for their second place standing.

The tourney showing was of special importance for the Bruins, who came into this year's action with a 1-17 tournament record. The finish was the highest ever for a GFC squad.

As the defending top independent in NAIA District II action, the Bruins are fielding a team boasting five returning lettermen, four junior college transfers, one freshman, and one red shirt from the junior varsity ranks.

The new talent is much needed as the Bruins face a tougher schedule that includes matches with Evergreen and Northwest Conference schools as well as participating in the always tough Pasadena Tournament in Calif. New Year's week.

The Bruins, who posted a 13-12 season's record a year ago and garnered a district playoff bid for the second year in a row under head coach Lorin Miller, are back with two year letterman Sammy Ibarra, a guard from El Paso, Tex. Ibarra was the Bruin's leading scorer two seasons ago and second a year ago.

Miller also relies on forwards Eddie Fields, a 6-5 senior from Sunnyside, Wash., and Craig Taylor, a senior from Caldwell, Idaho. Fields, with 140 and Taylor, with 161, proved excellent rebounders last year. Fields was the top playmaker leading the Bruins in assists with 71 while Taylor assisted on 48 buckets. Fields and Taylor share the captains duties.

Also returning from last year is senior Ken Greenman, San Diego. Up from the junior varsity ranks are sophomore Del Dittus, Quincy, Wash., and Phil Varce, Oregon City.

New to the squad as transfers are Rob Wunder from Highline Community College in Seattle; Jim Blake, a junior from Eastern Arizona Junior College, and Ray Willis, a transfer from Kansas State Junior College.

Showing potential as a freshman is Steve Strutz, Billings, Mont.

company, a cashier for the First National Bank, and an accountant.

In 1964 GFC students dedicated the college yearbook L'Ami to him "for his genuine interest in young people and his consistent Christian example . . ."

Hadley is survived by his wife Peggy Otis Hadley; his mother Mrs. Chester Hadley, Friendsview Manor, Newberg; two daughters, Janice Adams and Margorie Sandoz, both Portland; a sister, Mrs. Gene Hall, Sacramento, Calif., and two grandchildren.

Memorial services were held November 2 in the Reedwood Friends Church in Portland. Jack L. Willcuts, pastor of Reedwood Friends and a long-time co-worker in Friends activities, delivered the eulogy. "There was simply no one else like him in all the world; he was indeed someone special; he made faith fun," Willcuts said.

During the next few months admissions office operations will be handled by those already involved. Ron Rittenhouse will be in charge of on-campus visitations, and Gene Hockett will pick up many off-campus visitations; Marie Chapman, secretary, will handle office duties, and overall supervision of admissions will be carried out by Dean William D. Green.

GFC Cross Country Runner Finishes in National Ranking

George Fox College's Curt Ankeny established himself as the best runner in Northwest NAIA competition this fall in the national cross-country championship meet in Liberty, Missouri.

Ankeny, a Newberg High School product, finished in the top 5 percent of the nation's best harriers, finishing a strong 17th out of 320 runners crossing the tape.

Ankeny clocked the five-mile course in 25:24, just two seconds from national All-American honors awarded to the top 15 finishers.

The George Fox junior clearly outclassed his Northwest rivals. The closest Northwest finisher to the Bruin runner was in 66th place.

"I felt good going into the race and somewhat disappointed with the finish," Ankeny said. "Missing my goal of 15th by two seconds was a little disappointing, but I'll get another shot next year and hope to do better," he said.

Curt Ankeny

Meanwhile, Ankeny is turning his attention to even longer running—the Seaside Marathon early next year.

Development Office Gets New Center

A new office complex has been completed for the George Fox development department. The new office suite is in the northeast corner of Wood-Mar Hall.

Sorting papers was one of GFC Alumni Director Gene Hockett's first duties following move into new Wood-Mar Hall office complex.

Contained in the complex are the offices of Director of Development Maurice Chandler, Alumni and Church Relations Director Gene Hockett and Director of College Relations Barry Hubbell.

The $10,500 project created a central secretarial office and reception center with administrative offices surrounding. For the first time, the related development offices are grouped together in one department.

The project is the final step in remodeling the entire interior of the main floor of the 60-year-old administrative building designated by the State of Oregon as an historical building.

Other interior work also included creating new offices on the basement floor for Frank Cole, assistant to the president for long-range planning, and Arthur O. Roberts, former dean of faculty who is accepting this year the new Replogle Memorial Professorship.

Miller says he came to George Fox "with a clear picture of what I thought could happen and now it is happening." And Miller sees a good season for the Bruins. "For the first time in my 13 years of coaching I can honestly say I'm happy with every guy on the team. It's really a pleasure to coach these guys. It's a great situation to be in and it can get better yet."

Music Lectureship Series Established

A new lectureship series in music is being established at George Fox College this year, Dennis Hagen, head of the college's music department, reports.

Scheduled on an annual basis is the Boethius lecture, named for Anicius Manlius Torquatus Severinus Boethius, an early philosopher, mathematician and music theorist who lived about A.D. 475 to 525. He wrote a five-book Latin treatise De Musica, serving as a chief source of knowledge on Greek music.

The series is being established, according to Hagen, because of a "concern to provide something for the community in a scholarly fashion in addition to our normal recitals and concerts."

Participants will speak on subjects in their own academic area in programs that combine lectures and talks with performance.

First to be featured was Seymour Amick, a Newberg musician who toured nationwide as a concert pianist. His concern was the form in music.

A second series, to begin this winter, is the Asaph series, with an emphasis on church music.
