Students Pledge $9494 For Missionary Project

Eighty-seven dollars is a lot of money when you're a college student trying to get through college.

More than 100 George Fox College students, however, have averaged that amount in pledges to send fellow students around the world this summer as missionaries.

In a concluding service to mark the end of an annual Missions Conference week on campus, the students, in a half-hour period, volunteered $9,494 to back a person-to-person missionary endeavor using current students.

The total pledges, called "faith promises," were more than $2,000 above the $7,500 pledged a year ago in the first project of its kind.

Pledges from the 109 students ranged from $5 and $10 to as much as $500.

At the same time, 38 students have volunteered to give up a summer of employment to become short-term missionaries. That in itself is quite a sacrifice, according to GFC Chaplain Ron Crecelius, since student volunteers will not be paid for their summer service and will face normal tuition and room and board fees for the following school year when they return without a summer of paid employment.

Last summer GFC students, working through Crecelius and the campus Student Christian Union, sent eight students to foreign lands, and a ninth went on his own.

This summer up to a dozen students could be sent, Crecelius says.

Part of the money already is starting to come in and students have until May 18 to meet their pledge. "We're not taking away money from tuition or other expenses," Crecelius says. "We stressed that and will continue to do so."

"This is believing-in-God money," the chaplain says. "This is money that they don't have now but through faith are believing they will have by the deadline."

Sixteen missionary representatives were on campus for the conference which had the theme "One God—One Job."

Admissions Director Selected; James Settle Takes Post April 1

James E. Settle, 33, will become George Fox College's director of admissions April 1.

Settle is resigning his post as director of the Rogue Valley Youth for Christ to accept the position. He will operating the Applegate Shopping Center in Southern Oregon.

Called into YFC work, Settle sold his business and began YFC duties in November, 1967. In his first year he was awarded YFC International's "Rookie Director of the Year" award. Settle resigned as regional director for the State of Oregon YFC work in August, having served statewide since 1969.

A member of Medford Friends Church, Settle is married and has two daughters.

Hagen Picked for National Position

Dennis Hagen, chairman of GFC's division of fine arts, is one of six persons in the nation selected to regional presidencies of the College Band Directors National Association.

He was elected president of the Northwest region at the association's 17th biennial national meeting in Champaign, Ill.

Hagen, a George Fox faculty member since 1964, represents the states of Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, and Alaska, and will sit on the CBDNA's national board of directors. The term is for two years.

The nationwide organization has 600 band directors as members. As a regional president and national board member Hagen automatically becomes eligible for the association's highest offices. He moves up from a position as Oregon State chairman for the association.

GFC's Alaskan Campus Successful

Future possibilities for development of George Fox College's new Alaskan campus are almost unlimited, extension program director Roy Clark reports.

Response to the first term of classes at the Kotzebue center "exceeded expectations" with 72 persons enrolled, he says.

Total class enrollment was 105, counting persons enrolled in more than one course. Of the registrants, 78 percent are Eskimo and the rest non-native, according to Clark.

The college, which began the educational project this fall, offered seven courses with a total possibility of 14 credit hours during the first session.

The George Fox center, just 100 miles from Siberia, is believed to be the closest U.S. educational institution to Russia.

Of the Alaskan students, 23 were registered for college credit and 49 for audit, indicating they did the work for the class, but without a high school background were ineligible for college admission. Three persons are being assisted with their GED program of self-study for a high school diploma.

Average age for the enrollees on the George Fox northern campus was 30 to 40 years. Of the 105 class attenders, 17 eventually dropped out. "While this seems high by our standards," Clark says, "it presents a better picture than the statistics in the local high school and probably reflects a cultural pattern."

"On the other hand, for those who completed courses the absentee rate was very small, reflecting the interest in the program and the eagerness of the people to learn," Clark said.

Courses ranged from two to six weeks in length with classes averaging 2½ hours each.

Founded under a federal Title III grant, the program offers classes in the Friends Youth and Educational Building in the center of Kotzebue, a village of about 2,000.

"The response to the classes and the interest shown in this pilot program have been most gratifying," he adds. "The practical nature of the classes scheduled appealed to the people and apparently met a genuine need in the community."

"The interest is there, the need is there, and the potential is there," he adds. "If funding can be maintained to sustain the program, the future possibilities are almost unlimited."

College Opens City Bookstore

A new store to take business "where the people are" opened in downtown Newberg in late January.

George Fox College opened a branch of its popular campus bookstore in central Newberg at 510 E. First Street.

The 15 by 48 foot store is called "The Answer—Part I." It emphasizes family books, Bibles, greeting cards, and gift items.

The campus bookstore has been a popular attraction to Newberg residents with more than half of the store's sales coming from nontext-book items. In 1971-72 fiscal year an estimated 51,000 persons shopped the store, making more than 17,000 transactions.

The store handles "good reading books, not exclusively religious," according to Bill Loewen who manages both stores.

It also carries some Sunday school supplies and operates a special-order service for customers.

Band Completes Tour; Choir Sets March Trip

Residents in Oregon, Washington, Idaho, and California are getting the opportunity to hear the college's two major music organizations as the college band and orchestra make major tours.

The 59-piece band, directed by Dennis Hagen, chairman of the division of fine arts, toured in Washington, Oregon and Idaho for four days in early February. Featured was a band program designed to exhibit music of historical periods with some emphasis on music of other cultures.

The 47-member choir begins its tour March 9, ending in Newberg for a final home concert March 18. In between, the choir, directed by Dr. Jerry Friesen, will perform ten concerts in Oregon and as far south as Denair, Calif.

Three topics are featured in the 90-minute concert: The Call for a Savior, The Coming of the Savior, and Commitment to the Savior. Major works include "The Sixty-Seventh Psalm," selections from Mendelssohn's Elijah, "Wake, Awake" by Christiansen, and "Two Motets" by Heinz Zimmerman.

All performances, except for Newport (Ore.) High School at 11 a.m., Hessel Union Church in Sebastopol, Calif., at 7 p.m., and the Newberg Friends Church at 7 p.m., are slated to begin at 7:30. The choir will be at Newport, and Coos Bay (Ore.) Nazarene Church, Mar. 9; Sebastopol, Calif., Mar. 10; Walnut Creek (Calif.) Covenant Church, Mar. 11; Berkeley (Calif.) Friends Church, Mar. 12; Baptist Church, Reno, Nevada, Mar. 13; Denair (Calif.) Friends Church, Mar. 14; Stockton (Calif.) Covenant Church, Mar. 15; Citrus Heights (Calif.) Friends Church, Mar. 16; Medford (Ore.) Friends Church, Mar. 17; and Newberg Friends Church, Mar. 18.

College Receives Foundation Grant

A $50,000 grant from a Portland-based foundation has been awarded to George Fox.

The anonymous gift is one of the largest in a series of gifts received by the college in the last several years, according to GFC President David Le Shana.

The grant is the third received from the foundation. Two years ago the college was awarded a similar $50,000 grant and a year ago it received $27,000.

Managing Your Time Seminar To Be Sponsored by College

A two-day seminar "Managing Your Time" will be co-sponsored by George Fox College and World Vision Inc., March 1-2 in Vancouver, Wash.

The seminar is a mixture of lecture, discussion, individual work, and group interactions. The lectures will include discussion of the tension between individual and organizational goals, how to look at time management against goals, and how to balance time allocation between personal needs, family, and tasks.

Participants will learn how to discover where individual time goes and why, how to target efforts considering family and organization, how to get first things first, how to plan and to relate plans to schedules, how to have more time for others and how to solve problems.

Aimed at Christian leaders, the seminar, the first of its kind to be sponsored by the college, will be guided by Dr. Ted W. Engstrom, executive vice-president of World Vision International, and Edward R.

Dayton, director of the organization's Missions Advanced Research and Communication (MARC) program.

Engstrom, a member of the GFC Board of Trustees, is a former editorial director of Zondervan Publishing Co. and is the co-author of the best seller Managing Your Time.

Dayton is the author of God's Purpose/Man's Plans and has had extensive management experience in the aerospace industry and within Christian organizations.

Attendees at the conference are expected from Montana, Idaho, Oregon, and Washington. Similar seminars have been held across the nation.

Cost for the session is $55 and further participants are invited to "build realistic goals and priorities and develop meaningful ways of managing time," according to GFC President David Le Shana. Further information on the seminar is available through the college's development office.

Students Aid Orphans on Mexico Trip

Digging ditches doesn't sound like much of a way to spend Christmas vacation, but George Fox College students lined up at the chance to spend $50 for that opportunity.

Twenty-four left campus Dec. 15 to share their "time, talent, money and muscle" with orphans in a small orphanage in Baja, Mexico. GFC Chaplain Ron Crecelius organized the Christmas-time venture.

Those volunteering for the trip paid $50 for their transportation, meals, insurance, and incidentals on the trip.

Others on campus contributed money, gifts, and toys to be taken to the nearly 100 orphans in the "Centro de Amparo" mission center southeast of Ensenada operated by Mexican Fellowship, Inc.

Students spent most of their days aiding the orphanage by digging

Toys by the dozens were gathered by George Fox students and faculty and staff members for orphans in Mexico. Jim Kellogg, Wenatchee, Wash., was one of 24 students making the trip to deliver the presents and host a party as well as helping to build new buildings for the orphanage.

Drama Group Presents 'Ten Miles to Jericho'

Ten Miles to Jericho is the title of this year's play being produced by the touring George Fox College drama troupe.

And the cast will travel far more than ten miles. During the next three months the eight-member group will travel to the major cities in Oregon and into Washington presenting the 45-minute play.

Selected following tryouts, the students are being directed by Dr. Geraldine Mitsch, associate professor of drama. The play is being performed primarily in churches throughout the state, but also in other locations and before other groups.

Ten Miles to Jericho was written by Earl Reimer, a former student of Mrs. Mitsch. It relates the reactions and interactions between the main characters of the Biblical parable of the Good Samaritan. The play takes place in an inn where the wounded man was taken, about three weeks later.

"The total impact, we hope, will be one of sobering self-evaluation of individual interpersonal relations with those around us," Mrs. Mitsch says.

The cast includes, as narrators, Nina Ram, Seattle, and Bob Johnson, Vancouver, Wash. "Miriam" is portrayed by Ann Barbour, Forest Grove, and "Rachel" is played by Deb Sexton, Medford.

Casey Corum, Spokane, Wash., is the priest; Jeffrey Rickey, Portland, is the Levite, and Ron Boschult, Omaha, Neb., is the wounded man. The Good Samaritan part is played by Philip Campbell, a Newberg freshman.

The cast also handles its own lighting and sound equipment, costumes, properties, and makeup.

Winter Enrollment Statistics Reported

Enrollment on the Newberg campus of George Fox College is 424 for the winter term.

The figure represents a less than two percent drop from fall enrollment of 432. Enrollment between terms at most colleges is normally expected to fall from five to seven percent.

Registration figures are not yet available for George Fox's Alaskan extension in Kotzebue where new term classes will not start until March 5.

By classes, there are 140 freshmen, 105 sophomores, 77 juniors, 85 seniors, and 17 part-time and unclassified students.

The winter term enrollment figures include 12 new students entering for the first time and 10 students returning to campus after not attending fall term.

trenches and constructing footings for new buildings. It wasn't just physical labor that was involved, however.

Students conducted Sunday services while there and held a Christmas party for the orphans, passing out the gifts collected on campus or purchased with money donations. Students even packed along a Northwest Christmas tree and decorations for the orphans.

Students took one day off with a chance for deep sea fishing, sight-seeing, or swimming.

"Our purpose was not only to aid the missionaries and the orphans and share our time and goods with the Nationals, but also to give our students the opportunity to become involved in the needs of others," Crecelius said. He coordinated the program in cooperation with the campus Student Christian Union.

Newberg Government Leaders Become Students in GFC Class

You could almost have held a local government meeting in George Layman's class at GFC fall term.

Attending the twice weekly two-hour sessions were Chehalem Park and Recreation District Supt. Jim Kesey, Mrs. Neva Crabtree, park district board member, and two Newberg city council members, Walter Jaquith and Mrs. Stewart Harris.

The government officials attended the class along with seven other full-time students at George Fox.

The college introduced the program this fall, lowering tuition by 75 percent to government leaders attending the class which involved a study of the authority for government, its basis, how rules are made, how they are enforced, administration of regulations, and governmental overlapping and cooperation.

Layman brought the class an up-to-date view of government "as it is" since he is currently the attorney for the City of Newberg, the Chehalem Park and Recreation District, the Newberg School District, and the Newberg Rural Fire Protection District, in addition to his own private legal practice in Newberg.

Layman was the mayor of Newberg for four terms, the last ending in 1957. He has been a member of the Oregon State Board of Higher Education since 1963 and currently serves as chairman.

Layman has taught at George Fox College on a part-time basis since 1963.

President David Le Shana and Athletic Director Lorin Miller met with the alumni.

Portrait Paintings Picture Presidents

Five George Fox College presidents, four still living, are being honored with formal portrait paintings presented to the college.

The paintings were commissioned by Dr. John Brougher, a Vancouver, Wash., physician, and his wife. Brougher has been a member of the GFC Board of Trustees for 23 years.

The presidential paintings were created by Portland artist Fluvia Kerr and are of George Fox presidents in the last 60 years.

Guests at the presentation ceremony in their honor were Levi Pennington, 97, Newberg, president of the college from 1911 to 1941; Emmett Gulley, Brookings, GFC president from 1941-47; and current president David Le Shana who has been in office since 1969.

Other paintings are of Gervas Carey, president from 1947-50; and Paul Parker, president from 1950-52 and now living in Tucson, Arizona. Representing Carey was his daughter Elizabeth Carey Minas.

The oil portraits are in the reading room in Shambaugh Library.

Five GFC Alumnae Given Honors

Five George Fox College alumnae will be listed in the 1972 volume of Outstanding Young Women of America.

They were nominated by the alumni earlier this year on the basis of their achievements.

To be listed are Judi Retherford (Mrs. Dan) Nolta, a 1961 graduate and a pastor's wife in Tacoma, Wash.; Carolyn Hampton (Mrs. Ron) Stansell, a 1966 graduate who with her husband is a missionary for the Friends Church in Bolivia; and Barbara Berg (Mrs. James) Beil, a 1965 graduate who is an administrative officer for the naval base commander at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

Barbara Baker, a 1967 graduate, was just named editorial coordinator for the Asia-South Pacific ministry of Campus Crusade and is based in Manila, Philippines. Helen Joyce Klutsenbeker, a 1965 graduate, is teaching school for military dependents at the M and K Elementary School in Okinawa.

Now in its eighth year, the book recognizes young women between the ages of 21 and 35 for contributions to the betterment of their communities and professions.

Concert by The Four Flats Helps Scholarship Fund

In 1946 four George Fox College students got together to run through some male quartet selections. It sounded pretty good.

A year later they entered the Forest Grove Northwest Barbershop Ballad Contest. They won first place. They entered again the following year and again captured the top prize for quartets in the Northwest.

That was the beginning of one of the most famous music groups ever produced in Oregon—The Four Flats, later called the World Vision Quartet.

Twenty-five years later, all four members are once again living in Newberg near their alma mater, and a combination of city service clubs brought them together recently for a special performance.

The result: 2,300 persons, the largest indoor crowd in Newberg history, jammed the Newberg High School gymnasium for the concert, raising $1,500 for the George Fox Scholarship Fund.

As "The Four Flats," the four men sang together until 1952, receiving offers to enter full time in an entertainment career. Instead they chose to devote their voices and talents to the Lord and in 1956 they became a full-time part of the World Vision organization.

As the World Vision Quartet the members sang for hundreds of thousands in person, on the ABC radio network, and recorded three albums.

What are they doing today? Baritone Harlow Ankeny is general manager of Barclay Press, a printing and publishing arm of the Northwest Yearly Meeting of Friends Church. He's been in that position since 1962.

Since 1962, Bass Dick Cadd has been a missionary in the Philippines, teaching at Faith Academy in Manila and doing radio and television work. He is currently on a year's furlough in Newberg.

Second Tenor Ronald Creelius is chaplain at George Fox College. He's been at GFC since 1967, coming from the post of chaplain at Azusa Pacific College.

First Tenor Norval Hadley is currently superintendent of the Northwest Yearly Meeting of Friends Church with over 7,000 members in Oregon, Washington, and Idaho. He became superintendent of the church organization in July, 1971 after 11 years with World Vision as assistant to the president.

As a result of the initial concert success, the quartet has agreed to put on similar concerts in other areas, including Nampa, Idaho on March 3; Portland Civic Auditorium on April 16; in Seattle on May 26.

The Newberg concert, recorded live, will be available soon on a two-record album ($9.00 postage paid) by writing: The Four Flats, P.O. Box 232, Newberg, Ore. 97132. The record is scheduled for release about the last week in February after which orders will be filled.

Honors Book Lists Young GFC Alums

Four George Fox College alumni will have their names listed in the 1972 edition of Outstanding Young Men of America.

The men were nominated earlier this year by the college's Alumni Association. They were chosen on the basis of their professional achievement and community leadership.

Selected are Roy Johnson, a Coos Bay school teacher; Harold Clark, pastor of the Star, Idaho, Friends Church and Wendell Barnett, pastor of the Topeka, Kansas, Friends Church. All are 1965 graduates. Also chosen is Dr. Richard Foster, a 1964 graduate and pastor of the Woodlake Avenue Friends Church in Canoga Park, Calif.

Outstanding Young Men of America, now in its ninth year, is sponsored by leading men's civic and service organizations in the nation. Purpose is to honor young men between the ages of 21 and 35 for excellence in their careers and for community service.

Considered for selection are a man's service to others, professional excellence, business advancements, charitable activities, and civic and professional recognition.

Basketball Bruins Beat, Bow to Cage Opponents

It's been an up and down season as the George Fox Bruins try for their third straight berth in the NAIA District II playoffs. After a spectacular start, finishing second in the district tip-offs, the Bruins have posted six wins and 11 defeats for an 8-12 record with eight contests to follow.

The Bruins, under coach Lorin Miller, can still be in contention for a playoff bid as all four district independents are suffering through losing seasons so far. They're not alone, however, as even the district league teams are evenly matched, causing a mad scramble with only two teams having exceptional records and most taking their share of losses.

Here's a season recap: The Bruins, after bowing to Willamette University in double overtime in the Tip-Off Tournament, followed up with a second straight double-overtime loss, this time to visiting Pacific University, 94-84.

Senior guard Sammy Ibarra was nearly a one-man show, having one of the best nights of his career with a total of 32 points, and 20 of the last 24 points scored by the Bruins

GFC's Curt Ankeny Captures Run Title

GFC's Curt Ankeny topped 250 contestants to capture the title in the eighth annual Lake Oswego (Ore.) Road Run.

The Newberg junior was the first runner to finish the eight-mile course out of all contestants in various age groups from 10 to 60. He clocked the course in 41:37.

All the top finishers were in the college division. Ankeny trailed behind the 2nd place finisher through the first half of the race, then took the lead for good after 4½ miles.

"I went out pretty fast and knew I had it won after five miles," Ankeny said.

in the game. In a quick rematch the next night at Pacific, the Boxers used a 10-point splurge early in the second half to foil the Bruins 91-86.

Hosting Willamette University next, the Bruins took a 55-54 thriller from the Bearcats in Hester Gym, winning in the last seconds to nip the tip-off winners.

Switching to Salem the next night, the Bruins took an early 18-8 lead and looked like they would run away with the game only to have the Bearcats come back in the last half to take a 68-45 win.

Two days later the Bruins defeated visiting Eastern Oregon College, 82-71. Linfield then received an early Christmas present as game officials whistled the Bruins for 32 infractions (Linfield had 20) and Linfield won the game at the foul line, making good on 27 of 41 chances to take the game 77-66.

It was the second straight loss to the Wildcats who triumphed the night before in Newberg, 76-68.

With visiting Whitman College, Lorin Miller's squad watched a 16-point half-time lead disappear in the face of a zone press in the second half and the Bruins dropped the contest 64-60.

But a quick morning practice the next day produced changes that destroyed the zone the following night and the Bruins built up as much as a 30-point lead en route to a convincing 80-60 victory.

The Bruins found winning an elusive thing on a long four-day venture in Southern California. But the Bruins also found a "superstar" in their midst.

The Bruins dropped three straight contests in the Pasadena College New Year's Classic as they tested some of the best small college teams on the West Coast and Midwest.

Six-five center Rob Wunder provided the happy note as he scored 34 points in one game to take individual game scoring honors for all players, Guard Sammy Ibarra, who leads the Bruins in scoring with 14.9 points a game, shows how he uses his 5'10" stature to go around and under taller men to keep putting in the baskets. Ibarra, a senior, is from El Paso, Texas.

and added up 74 points in three matches to lead in that category. That pace earned him a spot on the second-team all-tourney team.

Wunder scored 29 points as the Bruins dropped their opening encounter, 85-77 to Pasadena College, the tourney champions.

The following day the Bruins muffed a last chance attempt to correct a bucket and dropped a one-point decision to Southern California College, 68-67. Against Macalester (Minnesota) College the Bruins fell behind quickly but made many attempts to comeback, finally going under 90-81. Wunder picked up his 34 points in that cause.

Traveling the next weekend to Victoria, British Columbia, Miller's team had only five healthy ball players as the others were fighting flu picked up in Los Angeles. And the Bruins were edged 62-60 in the opening encounter with the University of Victoria Vikings. Better health-wise and shooting-wise the next night the Bruins handily won, 65-54.

The Bruins held Western Baptist College of Salem to 15 points in the second half en route to a 51-43 win Jan. 15 in Salem. Three days later George Fox took a hard-fought 63-61 victory from visiting Oregon Tech of Klamath Falls for a third-straight win. That string was snapped two nights later, however, as the Bruins gave up a 10-point half-time lead in the closing seconds after leading nearly all the way and were nicked 68-65 by Southern Oregon College.

Guard Sammy Ibarra leads the Bruins in scoring at 20 games, with a 14.9 average. Wunder is right behind with 14.2 and leads in the rebounding department with 155 while forward-guard Ray Willis has picked off 138.

Team co-captain Eddie Fields leads in the assists department with 69 followed by Ibarra with 53 and co-captain Craig Taylor with 51.

The Bruins are averaging 69 points a game and are shooting at a .447 clip from the field.

Women's Athletics a Valuable Area

Women's athletics. Do they exist just to provide an outlet for active female sports fans?

No, is the simple answer of Dr. Marjorie Weesner, head of the George Fox physical education department.

Athletics for women is a multifaceted area with values for any woman, Mrs. Weesner says.

Sports are not just limited to the physical values in developing a healthier body, Mrs. Weesner says. Organized competition can lead the participant to see the value of an effort to a common goal, can develop faith and personal confidence, and can develop self control "especially at an official's bad decision."

Mrs. Weesner, addressing the George Fox College Women's Auxiliary, said women's athletics can help the participant to realize the importance of rules and can develop integrity by showing the importance of playing within the exact regulations "and the spirit of the rules."

The George Fox associate professor and coach says self discipline and dedication can be developed and that sports can act as "reality therapy" by "showing us we are responsible for our own quality of performance."

And the physical education administrator says athletics can teach an appreciation for good performance. "I abhor booing and failure to

Potential Good for Hoop Women

Although short on experience, this year's Bruin women's basketball squad is big on potential, according to Coach Nadine Brood as she fields a club of 13 with five freshmen, six sophomores, one junior and one senior. Only three of the girls have had previous cage experience.

West Linn senior Carol Wright is back for her fourth season with the Bruins and will handle the bulk of leadership on the floor.

Marilyn Lindgren, a Vancouver, Wash., junior, is expected to be in the fight for a starting spot if she can get over a leg injury.

Shirley Bradley, another West Linn product, and Carol Sodestrom, from Oakland, Calif., head the list of clap, even if for the other team, on good actions," she says. "Good performance should be appreciated no matter who does it," she adds.

Physical fitness is an important product of athletic competition, Mrs. Weesner says, but a longer range goal is to teach skills for after-school life.

sophomores. Both girls played for the Bruins last year and should provide some added experience.

In their first year are sophomores Peggy Steiger, Silverton; Peggy Schwab, Connell, Wash.; and Becky Bonney, Seattle, Wash. Freshmen are Laurel Cunningham, Seattle; Judy Fox, Columbus, Mont.; Nancy Jessup, Whittier, Calif.; Jan Fendall, Sherwood, and Sue Utterback, Portland.

Coach Brood says the Bruin defense should be tough but offense strength will take time. The girls move the ball well, she says, and as a whole the team has a solid nucleus.

During the season the distaff Bruins host Clark Community College, Pacific University, Clackamas Community College, and Marylhurst. They also meet Oregon College of Education, Willamette University, Mt. Hood Community College, Linfield, and Lewis and Clark.
