PAUL N. ANDERSON is in his 25th year of teaching at George Fox University, where he serves as Professor of Biblical and Quaker Studies. Author of over 180 essays, his latest book, The Riddles of the Fourth Gospel (Fortress 2011) provides a new introduction to John. He is a founder of the internationally engaged John, Jesus, and History Project (SBL) and is editing its works for publication. He participates actively in North Valley Friends Church and is working to get some of the works of Elton Trueblood back into print.

RICHARD BAILEY is Assistant Professor of History at Queen's University, Kingston, Canada. His research is the history of heterodoxy with special focus on sixteenth century Anabaptism and seventeenth century British Quakerism. His research focus has expanded in recent years to include the history of utopian thought.

SALLY BRUYNEEL lives in Saint Paul, Minnesota with her husband Alan G. Padgett. A United Methodist, she also attends the Prospect Hill Friends' Meeting. She currently divides her time between research and writing and teaching at Bethel University. Her latest book is Margaret Fell and the End of Time: The Theology of the Mother of Quakerism, with Baylor University Press.

DAVID L. JOHNS taught theology for twelve years at the Earlham School of Religion and before that was on the faculty at Wilmington College. He is now Vice President for Academic Affairs and Dean of the College at Union College in Kentucky. David is the author of Quakering Theology: Essays on Worship, Tradition and Christian Faith (Ashgate 2013) and editor of The Collected Essays of Maurice Creasey (Edwin Mellen, 2011).

JOHN KERSHNER has degrees from George Fox University, Princeton Theological Seminary and is completing doctoral research into the theology of John Woolman at the University of Birmingham (UK). He has been a recipient of the David Adshead Award for Quaker Studies and the Elizabeth Bogert Memorial Scholarship for Studies in Christian Mysticism. He has served as a NWYM pastor and is currently an elder at North Seattle Friends Church and a board member at Pendle Hill.
