Women's Retreat with Luci Shaw

May 6-8, 1988

"She writes about life and death, the mundane and the miraculous, joy and pain. Her works are both beautiful and unsettling in their ability to bring new insight to the commonplace and to challenge conventional stereotypes. Luci, herself, challenges stereotypes in almost every way. Yet, she is neither eccentric nor dramatic, and her poetry springs out of the life of a suburban homemaker, rather than an estranged artist."

Thus the September 1987 issue of Today's Christian Woman describes Luci Shaw, speaker for Tilikum's 1988 Women's Retreat. Luci has been writing for over 20 years -- four volumes of poetry, three anthologies, and poems that have appeared in major Christian publications.

Luci's talks for this retreat are titled "Journal Writing: An Inner Journey." She says, "Finding personal metaphors for our own lives, learning through writing, growing towards God, are all spin-offs from the acutal process of writing a journal and I would like to give some specific instruction to help people start journaling."

Opportunity will be given for small groups to explore and discuss the ideas Luci shares. Barb Mitchell and Kathie Willcuts will coordinate this exciting weekend.
