COLLEGE HISTORY AND LOCATION

The early Quaker settlers of historic Willamette Valley were conscious that the democratic structure of their church required a well-educated membership. They made provision, therefore, for the education of their children even before the public schools offered many advantages in this part of Oregon.

Pacific Academy was organized in 1885. Herbert, Hoover, the thirty-first president of the United States, was a student of this early institution. He has said, "As a young student there for three years, I received whatever set I may have toward good purposes in life."

Pacific College was organized in 1891 to provide work more advanced than that which the Academy offered. Pacific Academy was discontinued in 1930, and the educational efforts of the Quakers centered about the college, which came to play an increasing role among the colleges and universities of the West.

Because of confusion resulting from a large number of institutions along the Pacific coast embodying the name "Pacific," the school was in 1949 renamed George Fox College, honoring one of the great leaders in the English Protestant reformation and the founder of the Friends Church.
