GEORGE FOX UNIVERSITY

1996-97
WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

ATHLETIC AFFILIATION

The landscape of small-college athletics in the Pacific Northwest is undergoing sweeping changes, and George Fox University is in the midst of the transformation.

In the fall of 1994, the University joined the Northwest Conference of Independent Colleges (NCIC), a league of 10 strong academic institutions in Oregon and Washington. That winter, the NCIC applied for membership in the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) Division III. The move meant leaving the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA), an association George Fox had held membership in since 1965.

George Fox and the NCIC members have provisional membership in the NCAA but will continue to compete in NAIA national championships until 1998-99, when they expect to be eligible for NCAA Division III national championships.

George Fox's men's and women's basketball teams compete in NAIA Division II, while the 11 other sports the University competes in are not divided into divisions by the NAIA.

The NAIA is an autonomous association administering programs leading to 13 men's and 11 women's championships. The NAIA includes about 350 four-year colleges and universities in 49 states and Canada. They are grouped in nine regions and 44 conferences.

The NCAA administers 80 championships in 21 sports for its 1,201 member institutions, involving nearly 21,000 men and women scholar-athletes. There are more than 350 schools in Division III.

George Fox University maintains one of the Northwest's most successful small-college athletic programs.

The teams win. George Fox has earned district or conference titles in eight sports during the 1990s. George Fox's highest national team finish came in the fall of 1992 when the women's cross country team finished as national runner-up.

The athletes are successful. George Fox athletes have earned more than 100 NAIA All-American awards and half as many All-American Scholar-Athlete honors.

The coaches are award winners as well. Every head coach who has held their position for more than one year has been named district or conference Coach of the Year at least once.

Intercollegiate athletics is an integral part of the overall education program at George Fox. About 15 percent of the traditional undergraduate student body participates in varsity athletics. Men's varsity athletic teams represent the University in baseball, basketball, track, tennis, cross country and soccer. Women teams are fielded in volleyball, basketball, track, tennis, softball, cross country and soccer.

Athletic facilities include the Coleman H. Wheeler Sports Center, which includes three basketball or volleyball courts and two racquetball courts. Seating is available for up to 2,000. The track and field teams compete on Colcord Field, which received a new polyurethane surface in 1993. The Curtis and Margaret Morse Athletic Complex contains a baseball diamond, softball field and soccer field. In 1994, five tennis courts were installed in preparation for the addition of tennis as a varsity sport.

George Fox Attains First-Ever National Ranking

George Fox's women's basketball team earned its first-ever top-25 national ranking but found itself in a familiar position at season's end: on the outside fringe of the national tournament.

For the second consecutive year, the Lady Bruins finished third in a conference that sent two teams to the NAIA Division II national tournament.

In its first year in the Northwest Conference, George Fox defeated every league opponent at least once. The Lady Bruins were 2-2 against teams in the NAIA Division II top 10 rankings, but upsets by three teams with losing records cost George Fox a shot at a conference title.

It was the start of the season that held the fireworks. The Lady Bruins upset No. 1-ranked and eventual national champion Western Oregon State College to start the season 3-0.

The first regular-season poll placed George Fox at No. 22.

But the Lady Bruins would climb no higher. George Fox absorbed a blow in the fifth game of the season when one of their top shooters, senior guard/forward Jamie Courtney, went down with a season-ending knee injury.

The season ended with a semifinal playoff loss to eventual tournament champion Pacific University.

Thanks to a talented front court, George Fox was one of the nation's top rebounding teams. The Lady

Liz Stephens

Bruins outrebounded their opponents by more than 11 rebounds a game. Three of the top-six rebounders in the Northwest Conference played for George Fox: sophomore guard/forward Nancy Rissmiller, junior forward/center Becci Harper, and junior center Angela Pettit.

Rissmiller was the team's leading scorer (13.7 ppg) and rebounder (10.0 rpg) and was a first-team all-conference selection.

George Fox's second-leading scorer, senior forward/center Liz Stephens, won second-team all-conference honors. She wrapped up her four years at George Fox with 1,197 career points and 556 career rebounds, both fourth in George Fox records. She also ranks sixth in career blocks (68) and third in career field goal percentage (.456 461/1,011).

Harper and Pettit both received conference honorable mention.

George Fox Women's Basketball 1996-97 Outlook

Ranked No. 21 in the preseason NAIA Division II national poll, George Fox's women's basketball team is poised to challenge for the Northwest Conference title.

Interim head coach Scott Rueck inherits a veteran team with four returning starters, three who won conference honors last season as the Lady Bruins finished third in the league.

"We don't have any glaring weaknesses this year," he says.

The Lady Bruins certainly aren't weak on rebounding, where they return three of the top-six rebounders in the conference. Last season George Fox outboarded its opponents by more than 11 rebounds a game.

"Our biggest strength is rebounding," says Rueck. "But along with that, this team is going to play very strong defense."

On offense, he expects the Lady Bruins to push the ball up the court and score in transition, but says their inside game will be effective as well.

George Fox struggled from 3-point range last season, but Rueck says the team is working on that.

"I'm looking for us to be a much-improved outside-shooting team. We've made that a priority."

He wants George Fox's leading scorer and rebounder, guard/forward Nancy Rissmiller, to shoot more.

"Her improved outside shooting will add a new dimension to her game," he says.

A 1995-96 NCIC first-team selection, Rissmiller also is one of two NAIA track and field national champions on the women's basketball squad. Last year, she won the national high jump competition and was named the NAIA's Female Athlete of the Year by College Sports magazine.

Another threat from inside and outside is forward/center Becci Harper, who earned Northwest Conference honorable mention as the Lady Bruins' top assist maker, third-leading scorer and second-leading rebounder last year. She's the other national champion on the team, winning the NAIA 1996 javelin competition.

"Becci is really focused on achieving her goals this season," says Rueck. "She's a leader on the team this season, and it has really raised our team up."

Observers who saw 6-1 center Angela Pettit as a timid freshman in 1993-94 will hardly recognize her in her senior season. Her scoring average almost doubled each season, jumping from 3.5 to 5.6 to 12.2 last year. She is No. 1 in career field goal accuracy at George Fox (.475), and Rueck says she's in the best condition of her career.

"She will be one of the best post players in the conference," he says.

Rueck says the point guard will be George Fox's most improved position. Returners Cherish Carroll and Tonya Miller will battle for the starting job. Miller started more than half of George Fox's games last year, while Carroll—a transfer student—didn't play until the spring semester. Both are quick and aggressive defenders.

Forward/center Rachel Powell will take some of the minutes created by the graduation of NCIC second-team selection Liz Stephens. Powell is 6-foot, athletic, and an excellent anticipator and post defender.

Off the bench, Rueck has some solid shooters at the wing position: Keelie Keown, local product Melissa Heubeger, and Azusa Pacific University transfer Katie Johnson.

Rueck has three unknowns to add to the system. As a high school senior, 5-foot-11 Katie Greller shot 76.7 percent (79-103) from the floor, second best among Iowa high schoolers. She starts the season on crutches with a stress fracture injury.

Two players join the team late after completing a season with the George Fox volleyball squad. Wing Rachel Evans returns for her second basketball season, and 6-foot-1 post Michelle Harper joins her sister, Becci, on the squad.

After a six-game slate of non-conference games that includes a Southern California trip, George Fox begins its second Northwest Conference season Jan. 3.

Rueck says he expects a top-four finish in the conference, which would assure the Lady Bruins their fourth consecutive NAIA postseason appearance. The Northwest Conference tournament champion will advance to the NAIA Division II national tournament. At-large berths also will be awarded, added incentive for George Fox to maintain its top-25 national ranking.

"It's an honor to be ranked," said Rueck, "but we can't put any weight on that. Our goal is to earn our way to nationals through wins."

The Lady Bruins have never made it to the national tournament.

Becci Harper

Rueck expects the NCIC race to be wide open.

"There is no one dominant team," he says. "It could be anyone's year."

season, returns to the hoops program this year as interim head coach.

Rueck, 27, has seven years of coaching experience. He was a George Fox women's basketball assistant in 1993-94 and 1994-95 while the Lady Bruins compiled a 37-23 record and made two NAIA postseason appearances. Prior to coming to George Fox, he spent four years as assistant boys' basketball coach at Santiam Christian High School in Corvallis.

In addition to coaching duties, Rueck also teaches human performance courses at George Fox. He holds a bachelor's degree in exercise and sports science and a Master of Arts degree in physical education teaching, both from Oregon State University.

Rueck graduated from Glencoe High School in Hillsboro, Ore., in 1987. He comes from a basketball family. His sister, 1995 George Fox graduate Heidi Rueck, set the school's career, season and game assist records as an All-American point guard. His father, Marv Rueck, was a longtime member of the basketball coaching staffs at Hillsboro Union and Glencoe High School.

Scott Rueck has taken a leave of absence from the Newberg School District, where he taught physical education at Renne Middle School. He and his wife, Kerry, live in Newberg.

Her senior season, she led the Lady Bruin basketball squad in scoring and rebounding and won first-team Cascade Conference honors. She finished as the conference's top rebounder. In just two seasons, she totalled 533 rebounds, fifth on the George Fox career list at the time.

After finishing her collegiate career, Fleming played with the Portland Saints, a women's basketball club team.

At George Fox, the athletics director is responsible for athletic department functions, including eligibility and compliance with George Fox, conference, NAIA and NCAA regulations, budgeting, and department and sports center management.

Taylor has three children: Leah, 22, Bree, 17, and Casey, 7. He and his wife, Kathy, live in McMinnville.
