In her track and cross country career, she won a dozen NAIA All-American awards and also made the GTE Academic All-American At-Large First Team. She helped George Fox's women's cross country team to its first-ever No. 1 national ranking. She went on to win the 1992 Seattle Marathon in her first try and was inducted into the NAIA Hall of Fame.

Coach Cook

Wes Cook has twice been named National Coach of the Year

Wes Cook enters his 17th season as head coach of the George Fox University cross country and track programs. Each program has been a small-college national power under his leadership. All have recorded top-10 national finishers. In 1992, following the men's fifth-place and women's second-place national finishes, Cross Country Express magazine named his cross country program best in the nation at the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) level. In George Fox's final year in the National Christian College Athletic Association (NCCAA), his women's cross country team won the 1988 national title with a record low score of 19.

Cook has been named national coach of the year at the NAIA and NCCAA levels. At the district and conference level, he has been named coach of the year 12 times, at least once in each sport he coaches. His most recent was in 2000, when the women's track and field team won the conference championship.

Cook's athletes have won 84 NAIA or NCAA All-America awards and 68 NAIA or NCAA Academic All-America awards.

A Nebraska native, Cook rose to the rank of Eagle in the Boy Scouts of America before becoming a four-time conference track scorer at the University of Northern Colorado. He set the UNC record in the 800 meters and helped the mile-relay team to four consecutive conference titles. He was the national winner of the Holmes Award, given to the most outstanding senior in Alpha Kappa Lambda, a national collegiate fraternity. In 1961, he graduated from UNC with a degree in physical education and history. He earned a master of arts in teaching degree at Lewis & Clark College in 1975.

Cook served 26 years as a head coach at five high schools in three states. In 15 years at Gladstone (Ore.) High School, his track and cross country teams finished as state champion or runner-up 10 times. His boys' cross country team went undefeated for 51 straight dual meets, and he was named Oregon 2A (now 3A) High School Coach of the Year for all sports three times. In 1983, his son Toby set the Oregon 3A state record in the 1,500-meter race.

A member of the United States Track Coaches Association, Cook has served as president of the Oregon Track and Cross Country Coaches Association and the Oregon Association of The Athletics Congress (now U.S. Track and Field). Active in Fellowship of Christian Athletes and summer track and basketball camps, he has led four international tour teams and traveled to 15 countries. A frequent speaker at national clinics and seminars, he has also authored articles in various state and national publications.

Cook lives in Dundee, Ore, and has three adult children: Tammy, Toby, and Brad.

GEORGE FOX UNIVERSITY

Five Important Aspects

by Wes Cook

We believe in five aspects in our Bruin Track and Field program:

(1) Recognition of our athletic talents as God-given

We build our program around the belief that our talents are God-given, and we are stewards of these gifts. This provides motivation to work at multiplying these gifts to the fullest. Daily practice and each competition present opportunities to develop these gifts, and each opportunity should be approached with the best we have to offer back in thanks to God. More importantly, all things are created for God's glory. This means that the pursuit of athletic achievement is a means to the end in our attempts to continually glorify God.

(2) Development of a knowledgeable, dedicated, and supportive coaching staff

We have developed our program around the commitment to help athletes maximize their talents. This same stewardship is paralleled by the coaching staff. Our coaches work diligently to be good stewards, not only in their coaching commitment, but in their continued quest to study and investigate ways to be more effective, supportive, and encouraging to the athletes. We are committed to assisting dedicated athletes to make the most of their collegiate athletic experiences.

(3) Positive mental attitude

It is virtually impossible for any athlete to reach goals or maintain consistency with only physical preparation. We believe this one phase has been responsible, perhaps more so than any other, for our ongoing success. Interestingly enough, the Bible speaks often and inspirationally to the athlete. The Bible has been a constant resource in our quest for PMA material. One of the greatest lessons to be learned in athletics is that of self-assessment and self-inventory. Identifying individual strengths and learning to rely on them while at the same time identifying weaknesses and working constantly to improve them is a significant part of progressing along the road to success

(4) Goal setting

Goal setting is paramount. In any great plan there must be some short-term goals and the opportunity to identify success along the way, or the overall goal becomes unattainable "pie in the sky." Too often, lofty goals and expectations are set with no identification of intermediate indicators of success. These intermediate indicators of success are extremely important as a source of motivation enabling the athlete to sustain desire and a sense of purpose in their athletic endeavors. If a school, conference, or national record are the only targets, and nothing short of that is acceptable, athletes will struggle to identify fulfillment for the athletic experience. The concept of identifying the little successes along the way is extremely important. Every new personal record is a special achievement and, no matter how miniscule, we want to recognize and reward the accomplishment.

(5) Enjoyment

For many athletes, enjoyment may not be the most accurate descriptor of much of what she or he confronts on a daily basis. Certainly, feeling good about yourself, truly liking what you do, enjoying your teammates and the culture of the team are key contributors to enjoyment. It is also important to assure athletes that what is being done is purposeful as they work to reach their goals. Many coaches and athletes become obsessed with times, records, and winning. This obsession allows for little or no satisfaction in anything short of the ultimate goal. That's a shame! A lot of little successes are more important than one big success. You must enjoy the journey — one day at a time.

Excellence in Academics and Athletics

The Northwest Conference and NCAA Division III Experience

National Collegiate Athletic Association Division III

Colleges and universities in the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) Division III place their highest priority on the overall quality of the educational experience and on the successful completion of all students' academic programs. Division III institutions seek to establish and maintain an environment in which a student-athlete's athletics activities are conducted as an integral part of the student-athlete's educational experience.

Division III consists of more than 400 institutions, making it the largest division in the NCAA. All Division III institutions award no athletically related financial aid to any students. Division III sponsors 13 national championships in men's sports, 14 in women's, and eight national collegiate championships that are combined with other divisions.

George Fox University has been a member of the NCAA since 1995 when — along with the other institutions in the Northwest Conference — it elected to transfer its membership from the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA).

The Northwest Conference

The nine colleges and universities in the Northwest Conference are known for their academics and athletics.

The conference is building a reputation as one of the most competitive NCAA Division III alliances in the country. In the academic arena, every Northwest Conference institution has been ranked by U.S. News and World Report magazine as a top-tier school in its category.

Formed in 1926, the conference is one of the oldest athletic alliances in the western United States. Its nine members are all private colleges or universities located in Oregon or Washington.

George Fox left the Cascade Collegiate Conference to join the Northwest Conference in 1995, shortly before the Northwest Conference shifted national affiliation from the NAIA to the NCAA. Leaving behind years of success at the NAIA level, the conference embraced the move as one that would foster equity, sportsmanship, and genuine concern for the student-athlete in all endeavors of competition.

Athletic events of every kind have been played on what is now known as Frank C. Colcord Memorial Field, home to the George Fox University men's and women's track and field teams, almost since the day the institution opened in 1891. The site was the long-time home of George Fox football, and was officially dedicated as Colcord Field in halftime ceremonies at the Homecoming game on Nov. 2, 1968, shortly before the program folded. Field hockey, soccer, and other sporting events, including many of the school's intramural competitions, have been held there.

The renovation and dedication of Colcord Field was a major part of $2.5 million-plus program from 1976-80 that included construction of the Wheeler Sports Center, adjacent to the field to the east, and extensive upgrades to the softball, baseball, and soccer fields across the street on the north side of Fulton Ave.

A new rubberized surface was installed at Colcord Field in the mid-1980's, and was completely replaced in 2002.

Colcord Field was named in honor of the late Frank C. Colcord, a former two-term mayor of Newberg and a 35-year member of the board of trustees of George Fox. He was the school's treasurer at the time of his death in 1967. A 1920 graduate of what was then Pacific Academy, Colcord was an All-Conference player on a basketball team which twice defeated Oregon Agricultural College, now Oregon State University. He also served as student body treasurer, president of the Men's Athletic Association, and associate editor of the student newspaper, "The Crescent." He was elected to the George Fox Sports Hall of Fame for meritorious service in 2001.
