PEACE CURRICULUM RATIONALE

Each day we are treated to news in the mass media of conflicts all over the world. For example, there are conflicts between countries among various races of the world, conflicts in the family, conflict among different religions of the world, conflict between man and the environment, in addition to many other types of conflict.

Africa is no exception as far as conflicts are concerned. In fact, Africa can be described as a continent that is drowning in the blood of her own people. Many people have been displaced, maimed, or killed across the continent from Somalia to Liberia, from Algeria in the north to Zimbabwe in the south. The various forms of conflicts pointed out earlier have affected other countries, including Kenya. Schools have not been spared the conflicts either. There are problems in schools such as: drug abuse, and violence in various forms.

Evidently therefore, conflict is universal and as a result, many questions can be asked:

- Can anything be done?
- Could these conflicts have been prevented?
- Is there a way forward?
- What is the role of the church?
- What is the best form of intervention and who should intervene?
- How should the intervention be carried out?

As it is said: “Prevention is better than the cure.” Thus, there is a need for Peace Education at levels of society, particularly at the school level where students spend most of their formative years.

The Friends Church has historically supported and promoted the values of peace and conflict management. It is hoped that the Peace and Conflict Management Curriculum developed under the guidance of the Friends churches in Kenya will prepare Kenyan students to be responsible citizens and promoters of peace throughout Kenya, and the rest of the world.
INTRODUCTION

Peace education is in tandem with the Kenya Vision 2030 under the Political Pillar on Security, Peace Building and Conflict Management, which among other things states: “(iii) promoting processes for national and intercommunity dialogue in order to build harmony among ethnic, racial, and other interest groups, (iv) promoting peace building and reconciliation to improve conflict management and ensure sustained peace within the country, and (v) inculcating a culture of respect for the sanctity of human life that does not resort to the use of violence as an instrument of resolving personal and community disputes. This should start with the family, schools, the church, and all of the public institutions.”

The content of this curriculum reflects the Christian commitment of the Kenyan and American partners in this project, who believe that spiritual reconciliation is foundational to genuine peacemaking. The goal of this curriculum is to transform the behaviors of the students of Kenya to make a positive impact for peace on their country, their continent, and the world.

The following topics on peace and conflict management are presented as curriculum templates, and not exact lessons. The templates are intended to provide the teachers with resources for active, student-centered learning. It should be noted that while some lessons have more activities listed than others, any specific activities should serve as guides for the teaching of other lessons.

Any overlaps with existing curriculum should be viewed as strengths. The lessons in this curriculum are designed to provide some new information, as well as to reinforce specific concepts from other subject areas. Borrowing or integrating concepts from other subjects in specific lessons would also serve to strengthen this curriculum. Each teacher should use her/his professional judgment as to the activities which would work best for her/his class of students to achieve the goals of this curriculum.
NATIONAL GOALS OF EDUCATION

Education in Kenya should:

1. Foster nationalism, patriotism and promote national unity

   Kenya’s people belong to different ethnic groups, races, and religions, but these differences need not divide them. They must be able to live and interact as Kenyans. It is a paramount duty of education to help the youth acquire this sense of nationhood by removing conflicts and by promoting positive attitudes of mutual respect which enable them to live together in harmony, and foster patriotism in order to make a positive contribution to the life of the nation.

2. Promote the social, economic, technological and industrial needs for national development

   Education should prepare the youth of the country to play an effective and productive role in the life of the nation.

   a) Social Needs

      Education in Kenya must prepare children for the changes in attitudes and relationships which are necessary for the smooth process of a rapidly developing modern economy. There is bound to be a silent social revolution following the wake of rapid modernization. Education should assist our youth to adapt to this change.

   b) Economic Needs

      Education in Kenya should produce citizens with skills, knowledge, expertise, and personal qualities that are required to support a growing economy. Kenya is building up a modern and independent economy which is in need of adequate domestic manpower.

   c) Technological and Industrial Needs

      Education in Kenya should provide the learners with the necessary skills and attitudes for industrial development. Kenya recognizes the rapid industrial and technological changes taking place especially in the developed world. We can only be part of this development if our education system deliberately focused on knowledge, skills, and attitudes that will prepare the youth for these changing global trends.

3. Promote individual development and self-fulfillment

   Education should provide opportunities for the fullest development of individual talents and personality. It should help children to develop their potential interests and abilities. A vital aspect of individual development is character building.

4. Promote sound moral and religious values

Education should provide for the development of knowledge, skills, and attitudes that will enhance acquisition of sound moral values and help children to grow up into self-disciplined, self-reliant and integrated citizens.

5. Promote social equality and responsibility

   Education should promote social equality and foster a sense of social responsibility within an education system which provides equal education opportunities for all. It should give all children varied and challenging opportunities for collective activities and incorporate social service irrespective of gender, ability, or geographical environment.

6. Promote respect for and development of Kenya’s rich and varied cultures

   Education should instill in the youth of Kenya an understanding of past and present cultures and their valid place in contemporary society. The children should be able to blend the best of traditional values with the changed requirements that must follow rapid development in order to build a stable and modern society.

7. Promote international consciousness and foster positive attitudes towards other nations

   Kenya is part of the international community. It is part of the complicated and interdependent network of peoples and nations. Education should therefore lead the youth of the country to accept membership in this international community with all the obligations and responsibilities, rights and benefits that this membership entails.

8. Promote positive attitudes towards good health and environmental protection

   Education should inculcate in the youth the value for good health in order to avoid indulging in activities that will lead to physical or mental ill health. It should foster positive attitudes towards environmental development and conservation. It should lead the youth to appreciate the need for a healthy environment.
