JANET SCOTT is head of the Religious Studies Department at Homerton College in the University of Cambridge, England, where she teaches New Testament, Christian studies, and religious education. She is clerk of and an elder at Jesus Lane Meeting in Cambridge. Janet attended the World Council of Churches Faith and Order conference in 1993 (Santiago Compostela, Spain) and out of that has become part of the team organizing the July 1997 FWCC consultation on Identity, Authority and Community held at Woodbrooke Study Centre in England. Her 1980 Swarthmore Lecture, “‘What canst thou say?’ Towards a Quaker Theology” is published, and she is currently writing about the theology of the Quaker business method.

THOMAS D. PAXSON, JR. is professor of philosophical studies at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, a member of St. Louis Monthly Meeting, and clerk of FGC’s Christian and Interfaith Relations Committee. His involvement in ecumenical dialogue on peace witness began as the result of the selection of St. Louis as the site of the 1988 meeting at which Bro. Jeffrey Gros, F.S.C., then director of the Faith and Order Commission of the National Council of Churches of Christ—USA, initiated discussion of his proposal that Faith and Order consider the importance of commitment to peace as a “mark” of apostolic faith. Dean Freiday invited Tom Paxson to participate in the discussion as a member of the local meeting. This led to participation in three consultations held by Faith and Order as well as membership in the Historic Peace Churches/Fellowship of Reconciliation Consultative Committee. He has been named as one of two representatives of Friends General Conference to attend the 1998 Assembly of the World Council of Churches in Harare, Zimbabwe.

MARGERIE POST ABBOTT is a member of Multnomah Monthly Meeting in Portland, Oregon. She is currently writing and traveling in the ministry among Friends, most recently as the Brinton Visitor to Intermountain Yearly Meeting. She served as clerk of North Pacific Yearly Meeting and co-clerk of the first Pacific Northwest Quaker Women’s Theology Conference in 1995. She graduated with a degree in chemistry from Swarthmore College and holds a master’s in urban studies from Old Dominion University. Her recent publications include: A Certain Kind
