Eckles' "Simply Salsa: Dancing Without Fear at God's Fiesta" (Book Review)

Deborah L. Denison
Madigan Army Medical Center

The Christian Librarian is the official publication of the Association of Christian Librarians (ACL). To learn more about ACL and its products and services please visit http://www.acl.org/

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.georgefox.edu/tcl

Recommended Citation
Available at: http://digitalcommons.georgefox.edu/tcl/vol58/iss2/86

This Book Review is brought to you for free and open access by Digital Commons @ George Fox University. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Christian Librarian by an authorized editor of Digital Commons @ George Fox University. For more information, please contact arolfe@georgefox.edu.
Janet Perez Eckles has written a book that invites women to accept God’s call to dance. Despite losing her eyesight at age 32, suffering financial devastation, enduring the heartbreak of infidelity, facing incomprehensible grief after her son’s murder and the anguish that followed the acquittal of the individual responsible, Janet lives a dance-filled life. Throughout Simple Salsa, Janet provides examples when busyness, tragedy, anxiety, guilt or fear threatens to silence the music within our hearts and the rhythm of our lives.

Eckles’ writing style is passionate, humorous, engaging and creative. Spanish words and terms are liberally used, allowing the reader to better experience the “flavor” of Eckles’ voice as an author. Her transparency in sharing her feeling of anger and bitterness towards God, especially after He did not heal her from blindness, is both relatable and admirable.

Despite being only 143 pages long, the ten chapters of Simply Salsa are chock-full of profound truths that speak to women at every level. A Spanish-language glossary is included. Simply Salsa is an inspiring book of hope for all chicas.

The Smart Stepfamily: Seven Steps to a Healthy Family,
ISBN 9780764212062

Reviewed by Schylon Kubic, Women’s Foundation of Greater Kansas City, Kansas City, MO

The Smart Stepfamily is a valuable contribution to the literature on the family ministry of the church and to living a Christian life. Deal, an experienced and highly regarded expert on stepfamilies, argues that churches have an obligation to devote greater time, energy, and love to the nurturing of stepfamilies. Although many churches have taken great strides forward in the work to minister to the needs and challenges of families, Deal maintains that nearly all of these efforts have intentionally or unwittingly excluded “blended” or stepfamilies. Stepfamilies, stepparents, and stepchildren face serious and unique challenges; having strong support from their churches can be an essential ingredient in the success and happiness of these families. Deal helpfully provides a number of concrete steps that churches and family ministries can take to serve the needs of stepfamilies. Although some of these steps are common sense, the