Internet Links: Updated

More than fifty years after his passing, C. S. Lewis and his writings continue to have a growing presence on the World Wide Web, and increasingly so on social media websites. In 2015, a social media post was used to enlist the help of various Lewis scholars and readers in adding to Walter Hooper's growing list of unpublished Lewis letters. The end result of this collaboration may be the publication of a new and expanded edition of The Collected Letters of C. S. Lewis. While the following list of Lewis-related websites is not meant to be exhaustive, it is illustrative of the diversity of resources now available on the Internet. All links listed were active sites as of the date of this publication.

Sehnsucht: The C. S. Lewis Journal Submission Guidelines

S*ehnsucht: The C. S. Lewis Journal* welcomes submissions of articles, review essays and announcements related to C. S. Lewis and his writings from all interested parties in (but not limited to) the following disciplines: history, literary studies and criticism, philosophy, theology, apologetics, biography, imagination, mythology, ethics, Christian spirituality, comparative religion, cultural studies, geography, rhetoric, and philology (broadly defined). Submissions should embody original research or critical study and should not be under simultaneous consideration for publication elsewhere, either in the same or modified form. Length of articles may vary from approximately 3,000 to 10,000 words (longer with the concurrence of the General Editor). Book and film reviews should vary from 500 to 1,000 words in length. The General Editor welcomes inquiries (by e-mail or telephone) prior to submission, regarding the suitability of works, stylistic questions, and so forth.

A Style Guide is available to authors upon request from the General Editor and can be accessed from the Sehnsucht website. All works of any nature should conform to Sehnsucht's house style at the time of submission. Submissions that are not in stylistic conformity will be returned to the author for revision prior to evaluation.

Articles and reviews are evaluated as quickly as possible after submission. We endeavor to report back to the author(s) on the status of his/her submission within a reasonable time and without unnecessary delay. Ideally, notification of acceptance/rejection of a submitted work should occur within six months, though delays in this process sometime occur.

The journal is committed to the pursuit of the highest standards of academic research and writing, to the pursuit of truth, and to the advancement of the principles of mere Christianity as articulated by Lewis. The journal is also committed to the encouragement of both traditional and more contemporary approaches to the study of Lewis, and, in that pursuit, to the consideration of diverse (and emerging) methodologies. All submissions will be evaluated in light of these considerations.

General inquiries should be made to the General Editor by e-mail (Bruce@scottsdalechurch.com) or telephone (480-946-4207). Submission of articles or reviews should be made by e-mail attachment in Word format; a hard copy should be retained by the author(s). To facilitate anonymity, the author's name and institutional affiliation should not appear in the article or review. Illustrations can be included, but it is the responsibility of the author(s) to provide a high quality impression (not a photocopy) and to secure copyright permission.

A full, detailed, style guide to which all submissions must conform can be accessed and downloaded from the Sehnsucht website:

http://www.sehnsucht-cslewis.org/sehnsucht_style-guide.html

An electronic submission form can also be found on the website:

<http://www.sehnsucht-cslewis.org/submissions.html>
