PACIFIC COLLEGE

LEVI T. PENNINGTON
PRESIDENT

NEWBERG, OREGON.

WAR.

The world is at war. Hundreds of millions are suffering because of it. Let's face bravely our own duties and responsibilities as they are affected by the war.

Let's make the most of our opportunities for education these days, opportunities that are denied to millions who are as worthy and as earnest as we.

Let's practice rigid economy, that the needs of humanity may be better met because we save food that others may eat, money that it may be spent for others, time that it may be given in service to others.

Let's take on any new duties gladly and enthusiastically -- duties in college or outside, in class or Christian association or society, on the campus, in the dormitories, in the community.

Let's keep ourselves fit, physically, mentally, morally, spiritually -- fit for the best or the worst that fate can send us.

Let's seek to know our duty in these days of great need and many calls. Let's face facts bravely and squarely, and with all the light we can get, let's determine what our duties are, individually, and then each do what duty dictates and conscience commands.

-----

We whose names are subscribed purpose to live in the spirit of the above during the college year 1918-19.
