ONLINE MEDICAL DICTIONARY

<http://www.graylab.ac.uk/omd>

This is a searchable dictionary containing terms relating to biochemistry, cell biology, chemistry, medicine, molecular biology, physics, plant biology, radiobiology, science and technology. Besides standard terms the database includes: jargon, acronyms, theory, conventions, standards, institutions, projects, eponyms and history. There are a total of 65,000 definitions in the database plus cross references. Dates after entries indicate when the entry was created or updated. The dictionary does not utilize any special vocabulary or search syntax. Boolean operators are not functional in the database nor can quotation marks be used. Case and punctuation are not normally applicable, but the database instructions recommend using lower case for searching nonetheless. The user may access the database via the starting letter of the term desired, or by entering a search term. The definition is then displayed. At the bottom of the page a list of previous and next terms.

do? What is our intellectual task? I offer you a Christian librarian's creed of intellectual freedom—or a Christian Library Bill of Rights, with apologies to the Apostle Paul for the additional comment. My last word to you is:

Finally...whatever is true, whatever is noble, whatever is right, whatever is pure, whatever is lovely, whatever is admirable—if anything is excellent or praiseworthy—think about such things [and help others think about such things]. Whatever you have learned or received or heard from me, or seen in me—put it into practice. And the God of peace will be with you. [Phil. 4:8-9 NIV] *
