Arthur O. Roberts is professor of religion and philosophy and chairman of the department at George Fox College, Newberg, Oregon, from which college he received his A.B. degree in 1944. The Nazarene Theological Seminary granted him the B.D. degree and Boston University the Doctorate. His theses dealt with the concept of perfection in Quakerism and George Fox's concept of the church. Member of numerous professional and religious associations, he is also a recorded minister in the Oregon Yearly Meeting and for ten years served as pastor in the states of Washington, Missouri, New Hampshire, and Oregon. He is the author of Through Flaming Sword, a spiritual biography of George Fox, and is editor of the Friends quarterly, Concern.

Lorton Heusel has been serving as pastor of the Wilmington Friends Meeting in Ohio since 1958. A member of the Board of Christian Vocations of the Five Years Meeting, he has served also on Western and Wilmington Yearly Meeting Committees. He previously held pastorates in Indiana and Illinois. He received his first degree from Earlham College and his B.D. from Chicago Theological Seminary.

Paul A. Lacey, currently instructor in English at Earlham College, will teach a seminar next year at Pendle Hill on spiritual problems in modern literature. A convinced Friend, he is a member of the Philadelphia Yearly Meeting. He holds his A.B. degree from the University of Pennsylvania and is a candidate for the Ph.D. degree from Harvard University.

T. Joseph Pickvance, British Friend, is a member of the staff of the University of Birmingham, England. In 1947-1948, while holding a Fellowship at Woodbrooke College, he studied the mystics and turned his attention to the early Friends and particularly to George Fox. For the past seven years he has been studying the historical background of the early Quaker movement.

J. Calvin Keene is professor of religion and head of the department at the St. Lawrence University, Canton, N. Y. Earlier he occupied for fifteen years the Jesse Holmes Memorial chair in theology at the Howard University School of Religion.
