OFFICIAL IMPROVED BASKETBALL SCORE BOOK

REVISED TO CONFORM TO NEWEST RULES

EXPLANATION OF PROOF IN SCORE BOOK

The first column is devoted to shots at the basket. Each line indicates one shot and if the basket is made the line is crossed with an "X." You will note in the first half Lambert took 5 shots and made good his second attempt.

The second column records the running score and is self-explanatory.

The third column records the goals both from the field and from the foul line. The field goals are listed as "2," free throws made as "1," and free throws missed as "0."

The next two columns give the position and number of players.

You will note there are three spaces for each position. This will give room for 15 names in the book without crowding or confusion.

Fouls, both personal and technical, are reported in one column for both halves. This will avoid the confusion of carrying over personal fouls from the first half to the second. You will note person fouls are listed as P1, P2, etc., as they are committed.

The 8th column records the goals and free throws made during the second half with the next column carrying a continuation of the running score and the last column recording shots at the basket taken the second half.

The line-up is placed in the middle of the book so that both halves can be reported with equal exactness.

The information so recorded is all a coach so desires and is arranged in a compact manner so the Score Book can be carried in one's pocket.

Wilson . . . the last word in modern Basketball Equipment

What does fine new equipment do to a basketball team? You know—it peps them up. Give that gang a new Wilson basketball — sparkling new Wilson uniforms — and their morale and playing will zoom upward.

Wherever basketball is played the name Wilson on equipment is seen more frequently today than any other. And that's true of other sports, too, all the way from tennis and golf to baseball, softball, football and other great American competitive sports. Wilson equipment is designed by men in tune with today's modern sports and made by skilled craftsmen. Wilson means the LAST WORD in modern equipment for modern play.

FAST PLAY ASSURED!

There's a lot of "know how" required to make a good basketball—even with the best of materials. You find the results of that skill in the Wilson "CJO" Basketball—the last word in modern basketballs for modern play.

The "CJO" is a laceless construction ball . . . made of the finest, full grain pebbled cowhide . . . double lined . . . lock stitched.

The "CJO" is correct in balance . . . accurate in rebound . . . steady in flight.

For fast play—and long, hard play—buy the Wilson "CJO." It's the last word in modern basketballs.
