Contributors -- Quaker Religious Thought, nos. 103

Paul Anderson
panderso@georgefox.edu

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.georgefox.edu/qrt

Part of the Christianity Commons

Recommended Citation
Available at: http://digitalcommons.georgefox.edu/qrt/vol103/iss1/7

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by Digital Commons @ George Fox University. It has been accepted for inclusion in Quaker Religious Thought by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ George Fox University.
CONTRIBUTORS

DAVID L. JOHNS is associate professor of theology at the Earlham School of Religion. He taught at both Malone College and Wilmington College before joining the ESR faculty. David earned the Ph.D. from Duquesne University and is involved in ecumenical work through the Faith & Order Commission of the National Council of Churches. His most recent publication is Mysticism and Ethics in Friedrich von Hügel (Edwin Mellen, 2004).

HOWARD MACY is professor of religion at George Fox University. After earning the Ph.D. at Harvard, he taught at Friends University before joining the faculty at GFU. An Old Testament scholar, Howard is interested in the Psalms and the prophets, as well as the role of humor in the spiritual life. He is the author of Rhythms of the Inner Life (Chariot Victor, 1999).

LONNIE VALENTINE is professor of peace and justice studies at the Earlham School of Religion. He joined the ESR faculty after completing a Ph.D. at Emory University. A recent article, “The Execution of Timothy McVeigh as Religious Sacrifice,” appeared in Peace Review. Related to the focus of his essay in this issue of QRT, Lonnie frequently offers workshops on the military draft and conscientious objection.

STEPHEN MORONEY is an associate professor at Malone College and Graduate School, where he received the distinguished faculty award for teaching. He earned the Ph.D. from Duke University. He is the author of The Noetic Effects of Sin: A Historical and Contemporary Exploration of How Sin Affects Our Thinking (Lexington, 1999), as well as a recent article on neutrality and advocacy in teaching published in Christian Scholar’s Review. Steve and Sue Moroney live in Canton, Ohio, with their daughters, Grace and Joy.
THOMAS F. JOHNSON is professor of biblical theology at George Fox University where he served as interim president in 1997-98. Tom earned the Ph.D. from Duke University and is the author of 1,2,3 John (New International Biblical Commentary) as well as a chapter in Universal Salvation? The Current Debate (Eerdmans, 2004). He served as president of the University of Sioux Falls from 1988 to 1997 and was professor of New Testament at North American Baptist Seminary in South Dakota from 1983 to 1988. He is married to Michele, and they have three children.

ARTHUR O. ROBERTS is professor-at-large at George Fox University where he taught for over fifty years. He earned the Ph.D. from Boston University. In addition to his many writings on Quaker history, faith and practice, Arthur has written several books of poetry, and most recently, Exploring Heaven (HarperCollins, 2003). He has published a number of articles in Quaker Religious Thought and was its editor from 1989 to 2000. Arthur and Fern Roberts live in Newberg, Oregon.